One fireman was overcome by smoke and another was so badly cut and bruised by falling debris that he had to be sent to quarters after receiving medical aid. The fire did a damage of $75,000.

The first floor of the building was coupled by Samuel Lennig & Son, store fixture dealers and makers, as a salescoom, and the two floors next above contained their factories. The fourth floor was occupied by John Mandel, dealer in steam heating appliances, and the fifth by a collar and dress shield company.
